We have seen many samples of the new crop that are fully equal to the best high-priced samples that were offered in our maket during the season that is just closing.

It is our opinion that bright wrappers can be furnished from this section in quantities sufficient to wrap all the common stock that will be offered in the Richmond, Lynchburg, and Petersburg markets, besides the large quantities which will be required by our own manufacturers.

and various speculations have been maderelative to the growing cottonerop of this Co. The Spring was unpropitious for the plant and bad stands were common, almost universal. June and July were favorable and the plant attained a good size, and bolls were plenty. Estimates were made by practical planters that 15 to 16,000 bales would be made, but August set in and with it remarkably cool weather. In fact our oldest planters say they have never known so cool an August. The consequence is rust everywhere and in many places rot.-From all we can gather from the different sections we are not disposed to put the crop of the county higher than 10,000 bales.

Toward mid-afternoon this neighbor knocked at the front door of Mrs. Miller's house, and finding no response from within, went up the alley to the back gate, and entered the kitchen. To her horror she beheld lying on the floor, in the centre of a pool of blood, the body of Mrs. Miller. A razor was by the right hand, and the idea that presented itself to the discoverer of the tragedy was that the old lady had committed suicide. The neighborhood was speedily roused and the police called in.

An examination of the body at once showed that a frightful murder had been committed; that the unfortunate lady had ever be trusted again with the management been grappled by the throat, stunned by of such an enterprise. three heavy blows upon the back of the head, and that her throat had then been severed from ear to ear. A colored hood or working-bonnet which belonged to deceased was found on a table in the room, and on it were spots of blood. Blood marks were discovered on the table, and also on the wall close by the table.

By frugality and thrift the Millers had ccumulated some $900 dollars, which they kept in the house. This money was found safe in its place of deposit. Whoever did the murder seems to have been actuated by other motives than those of plunder. Nothing in the house appeared to be missing. The unfortunate husband first learned of the commission of the damning deed from the lips of his employer. He seemed stunned at the tidings, stupefied and bewildered. His grief was too terrible to dissolve itself in tears. The sister went into convulsions when the information was confided to her, and has since been lying in a state of coma. The deceased, as well as the rest of the family, were noted as being very quiet, respectable, and exemplary people. The entire family were on the best of terms with everybody in the neighborhood, and it is not known that the deceased had an enemy in the world, her entire time being counties of North Carolina, no finer crop devoted to household affairs.
